Koohang awarded the Informing Science Institute Fellowship

Alex Koohang was awarded the Informing Science Institute Fellowship in June 2005 in recognition of dedicated commitment to research, editorial, and the highest standards of excellence in the field of Informing Science. Alex initiated and serves as the Editor-in-Chief of the internationally recognized Interdisciplinary Journal of Knowledge & Learning Object. He initiated and runs the Informing Science Institute's forthcoming learning object repository. Alex has helped establish the Institute's forthcoming journal, the Interdisciplinary Journal of Information, Knowledge, & Management. He also serves as the editor of this journal. He, along with a colleague in Arizona, is currently editing a series of books for the Informing Science Press on learning object.

Alex also won the Informing Science Best Paper Award which was presented at the InSite 2005 in Arizona. This paper is published in Informing Science Journal, one of the institute's prestigious journals.

Congratulations to Alex for being named a Fellow of the Informing Science Institute and for all his great contributions.
